Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science found to be a genuine hair specific. It has an affinity for the human hair for nourishing and in vigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating, its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, inasmuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops hair falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye, it is not sticky or greasy, on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite its influence is delightfully soothing.

All Dealers sell it, $1 per bottle. Mail order may be sent direct to the manufacturer,

STRIKE ENDED.

Sliding Scale Abolished By The Operatives.

Ten Per Cent. Advance In Wages Also Conceded.

When The Men Will Return To Work Is Uncertain.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—The great strike of the anthracite coal miners throughout the western Pennsylvania region, which began on Sept. 17th, was practically ended today when the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company and the Lehigh Valley Coal company both agreed to abolish the sliding scale and concede an advance in wages of ten per cent net, this advance to continue in operation until April 1st next, or thereafter. This action meets the demands of the Scranton miners' convention. How soon an official order bidding the men to return to work will be issued by President Mitchell can only be conjectured. It is believed here tonight that such an order will not be given out until a notice similar to that of the Philadelphia and Reading company is posted in all the mines.

SPECIMEN GROUP OF PENNSYLVANIA COAL STRIKERS.

BAGGED A GOOD BUNCH.

MANILA, Oct. 17.—Taking advantage of a stormy night, Capt. Elliott of the Forth United States infantry assailed a rebel stronghold near Orquieta in the island of Mindanao and captured General Alvarez and his staff and twenty-five Filipino soldiers, without any fighting. This is an important capture and will tend to pacify the island. Alvarez has been active in provoking hostilities against the Americans for some time and was planning an other aggressive movement when taken prisoner.

LYNN'S MURDER MYSTERY.

LYNN, MASS., Oct. 17.—The great trunk tragedy, as it was called, of 1872, when the dismembered body of Jennie Clark was picked up in the Saugus river, may not have been any more mysterious or caused more interest than the murder case which is now engaging the officers here. Beneath a bridge that spans Floating Bridge pond, about ten o'clock this morning, was found a gunny bag with the trunk of a man's body. Late this afternoon two more sacks of similar material came to the surface, each containing a leg. The head and arms are missing. The medical examiner says the body must have been terribly backed in the efforts to dismember it, and that apparently a heavy knife was used by the murderer. It may be that rival affections, which led to a quarrel and then to murder, are at the body of the horrible affair. The police have strong suspicions that the victim was George E. Bailey and they have arrested John C. Best, thirty-two years old, a farm hand employed on the estate where Bailey was caretaker. In the barn cellar of Brakehart Hill farm, where the two men have been living, was found an axe, bearing blood stains, but it is not certain that it is human blood. On a window sill and a piece of cardboard there more blood is dis-

THEY COLLIDED.

Dahlgren And Craven Have Hard Luck.

Happened As They Were Leaving Newport For Portsmouth.

Both Boats Had To Put Back Into The Harbor.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 17.—The torpedo boats Dahlgren and Craven were in collision off Castle Hill on Tuesday night. The Dahlgren was only slightly damaged. Both got back to the harbor, but only the Craven succeeded in making her slip at the torpedo station. The Dahlgren went upon a mud flat at the southern end of the harbor and was pulled off today. The two boats left here yesterday for Portsmouth, the Dahlgren being some distance ahead. One of her engines stopped, for some reason, and the Craven passed her. The Dahlgren soon caught up, however, and attempted to cross the Craven's bow, near the bell buoy. The Craven hit the Dahlgren twenty-five feet from the stern, twisting the Craven's bow until it pointed to the stern. As the Craven was making water rapidly, the forward compartments were all closed and the crew put off from her. In getting into the boat, one of the crew fell into the water and was overboard for a half hour before he was picked up. He was almost exhausted when finally rescued by a boat from the Dahlgren. The Craven made back to ward the ships and the Dahlgren kept close to her, to assist her, and tried to make the next slip to her's. In this operation the Dahlgren went into the Craven's stern, doing considerable damage to it. A heavy sea was running and the Dahlgren rammed the Craven for a second time, shifting the Craven's starboard engine. Then the Dahlgren gave up trying to get into the slip and anchored with four fathoms of cable. Her moorings failed to hold and she went drifting across the harbor and grounded on a mud flat. A board of inquiry will be called. Lieut. William G. Miller was in command of the Dahlgren and Lieut. Ford H. Brown had charge of the Craven.

THE CHINESE ISSUE.

* Russians vs. Chinese.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 17.—Detailed reports of the occupation of Mukden, in Manchuria, have reached the war office, showing that the Russians met with strong opposition at Schachow, where thirty battalions of Chinese, with twenty field guns, Krupps and Maxim, held the railway embankments and heights beyond. The fighting lasted from nine o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon. After artillery preparation, the whole Russian column was thrown at the Chinese position and by evening the Celestials were in full retreat. On the next day they made a less stubborn stand on the mountain chain. Their position was captured at noon, but the Russians could not pursue the enemy, owing to extreme fatigue and the difficult nature of the country.

OLD NAVAL FIGHT AGAIN.

Chief Naval Constructor Highborn Recommends a Reorganization of the Bureau.

A Washington paper says that all signs point to the reopening of an old naval fight in the navy department. The struggle involves the existence of a prominent bureau, which it is believed by some should be abolished and its duties handed over to another bureau. The point will be raised by Admiral Philip Highborn, chief naval constructor. In his annual report he has recommended a general reorganization of the bureau of construction and repair, much on the lines of his suggestion of a year ago. This includes the absorption of the bureau of equipment, whose work is closely allied with that of the construction department.

Admiral Highborn's recommendations also provide for a transfer to his bureau of some of the duties now performed by the bureau of steam engineering. If these recommendations were to be carried out, they would result in the abolishment of the bureau of equipment, and the reduction of the bureau of steam engineering to a position corresponding to a sort of annex to the bureau of construction. As soon as it was noised about the navy department that the chief constructor proposed to renew his old recommendations for a reorganization of the bureau of the department, Admiral Bradford, chief of the bureau of equipment, went into retirement. He is devoting almost his entire time to the preparation of his annual report, in which he may be counted on to make a vigorous reply to the proposal of Admiral Highborn.

The latter, in his annual report, will also urge the extension of electricity as a motive power in warships. The advantages of copper sheathing for war vessels will be dwelt on at length by the chief constructor, and a recommendation made that the battleships and cruisers about to be advertised for, be provided with sheathing of this character. Admiral Highborn will also include in his report a statement regarding submarine boats, pointing out their great usefulness and the part taken by his bureau in developing the plans for the submarine boats that were recently contracted for.

Whatever may be the outcome of the differences, there is a general disposition to agree with Constructor Highborn's recommendations.

IN THE THEATRICAL WORLD

IT ENDS SATISFACTORILY.

What Happened to Jones, George H. Broadhurst's successful friend, comes to Music hall Saturday evening. The story of the comedy is said to be simple, but to provide good work for the complications. Professor Goodly expects a visit to his New York home from his brother, Rev. Anthony Goodly, bishop of Ballarat. In anticipation of this event the most elaborate preparations are made by the wife and daughter of the professor, in the interest of science and unknown to his family, is induced to attend a prize fight by his future son in law. Although the police are "fixed" the place is raided. Both escape, but the professor in doing so falls and gets a black eye, not to mention the damage to his clothes. Just as they think themselves safe from the clutches of the law a stranger bursts in upon them. This is Jones, who, to avoid arrest, knocked down one of the pursuing guards of the law and followed him into the house. He is a traveling salesman who handles hump books and for a side line sells playing cards. The house is unfurnished, and to avoid exposure to himself the professor palms off Jones as the bishop, and the ensuing complications are both interesting and hilarious. In the end Jones "wins out" and everything ends satisfactorily.

FULL OF SUNSHINE.

When a successful character drama has passed the fourth milestone on its path, and the fifth is announced with the word "success" stamped all over it, what is the press agent to write further? All by this time knows that Denman Thompson and George W. Ryer's, The Sunshine of Paradise Alley, has had four most prosperous years, and that it has always been presented here before crowded houses. It will be good news to the theatre-goers of Portsmouth to know that the management of Music hall will again present Sunshine soon, when a crowded house will no doubt be in evidence, ready to greet the favorites. Phila May, Mrs. Charles Peters, Helen Gurney, Grace Kimball, John Walsh, W. J. Sully, John MacLean, John J. Flynn, George P. Annand, the baritone, and the Verdi Ladies' quartette. New scenery will be shown this year. The performance in Portsmouth will be the 1200th consecutive one of the play, and the management, to make the occasion noteworthy, will present each lady holding a reserved seat coupon with a beautiful Sunshine souvenir spoon.

STRONG IN CHARACTER.

A combination of pathos and humor, together with an exceptionally strong and interesting story of American life, are the component parts that make Daniel Sully's great play The Parish Priest the success that it is. Mr. Sully has a role that fits his personality exactly, and is pervaded with a characteristic individuality that makes it a strange portraiture as natural as it is new. As Father Whalen, Mr. Sully gives the stage a creation that places him among that select galaxy of theatrical celebrities that include such names as Jefferson, Crane and Goodwin, stamping him as the representative Irish-American actor.

THIS WEEK AT THE BIG FAIR.

This week Victor Herbert and the Pittsburgh orchestra make their first appearance in Boston. Mr. Herbert appeared as conductor of the Pittsburgh orchestra for the first time in November, 1898, and the success then achieved and repeated at following concerts was without parallel in musical Pittsburgh. He has thorough knowledge in orchestral technique. His players display the discipline, performing with distinct rhythm and with delicate shading and characteristic tone color. The softest passages are almost like a breath; the fortissimo climaxes reached by steady, gradual crescendo, well rounded, evenly balanced. Music-loving New England is awaiting with eager expectancy the twelve concerts to be given this week by this far famed orchestra and its famous conductor. There will be a big automobile parade on Monday under the auspices of the 20th Century Exposition.

WITH THE THEATRICAL FOLK.

What Happened to Jones next. Sarah Bernhardt is fifty six years of age. Fanny Rice will begin a tour after election. Monday evening's attraction will be The Parish Priest. Jule Waters is playing the tramp in Side Tracked, this season. What Happened to Jones is said to be stronger than ever, this year. It is doing a big business. The Sunshine of Paradise Alley, Wed. next evening, Oct. 24th. George W. Wilson and company are at Marlboro all this week. The Rogers Brothers in Central Park has not played less than $12,000 a week at the Victoria, New York. The engagement is for several weeks longer. A feature in the production of Chas. H. Yale's mechanical and operatic trick spectacle, The Evil Eye, under the management of Sidney R. Ellis, is the singing of Miss Mayme Mayo. Her voice is one of excellent quality and compass, and her selections are rendered in such a manner as to reach the hearts of her audience.

THE HOOPOE'S CROWN.

A Pretty Legend of the Origin of Its Golden Crest.

The hoopoe is found in Europe, Asia and Africa. It continually utters in soft, rapid tones a peculiar note resembling "hoop, hoop, hoop," whence its name.

It is really a harmless, useful bird, but it is the subject of many superstitions, being regarded as ominous of evil. It is about the size of a thrush, is very elegant in appearance and is greatly admired because of its handsome crown or crest. This crown is composed of gold colored feathers of unequal lengths, having a fringe bar and black tips, which it can expand and depress at pleasure.

According to a pretty legend, the hoopoe received its crown as a reward for a kindly service. One very hot day, the story runs, King Solomon was journeying from one part of his vast domain to another. He had no cover over his head, and the sun's scorching rays became unbearable. At length he came up with a flock of vultures and said to them:

"Vultures, do me a kindness. Fly very close together above my head and shield me from the sun for a time as I journey." The vultures refused outright to thus favor the king, and he then said to them: "Vultures, because of your selfishness your heads and necks, and the heads and necks of all your descendants, shall from this time to the end of time be bare of feathers, and thus you will be exposed to both heat and cold."

Solomon went a little farther and overtook a flock of hoopoes, and thus addressed them:

"Little hoopoes, my head aches from having been exposed to the sun's rays for several hours. Won't you hover above my head in a body to shield me from the sun, and fly along with me to the end of my journey?"

The hoopoes readily consented, and so they hovered above the king's head, doing their best to shield him from the sun. He was so pleased with their service that he decided to reward them, and then the king said to them:

"Little hoopoes, what favor may I confer upon you for your great kindness to me?"

One hoopoe, acting as a spokesman for the others, answered:

"If you wish to favor us, O King Solomon, ornament our necks with a crest of beautiful golden feathers."

"Would you not rather have your heads ornamented with a beautiful golden crown?" the king asked.

"Much rather, much rather!" exclaimed the hoopoes in chorus.

"Then," said King Solomon, "four heads, and the heads of all your descendants, shall to the end of time, be ornamented with golden feathers, and shall never be removable for its beauty."—Philadelphia Times.

How She Cured Him.

Mr. Cyrus Bulwinkle is a man of good intentions and the possessor of a heart about the size of a loaf of hay, but recently he fell into the habit of swearing. Not that he thought it smart to swear or that he was prone to lose his temper, but somehow he got to interpreting wicked large letters and words in a vulgar way, and he found that he was talking to himself in a way that was not to his credit. He was a good natured man, but he was a little bit of a fool, and he was a little bit of a swab. He was a good natured man, but he was a little bit of a fool, and he was a little bit of a swab. He was a good natured man, but he was a little bit of a fool, and he was a little bit of a swab.

Mrs. Bulwinkle worried over it a great deal. She remonstrated with her husband and begged that he would be more careful. "Pshaw!" Mr. Bulwinkle would reply at such times. "What's the use of talking to anything. It's all from the surface—merely a habit, you know. I guess it's because the boys in the office swear like that."

Seeing that it was impossible to stop him by any ordinary means, the lady resorted to a very effective remedy. So, a few evenings ago, when Mr. Bulwinkle came home from the office he took a look at the lawn and then bounded up the front steps to the porch, where his wife was awaiting him.

"Henrietta," he exclaimed, "why don't you have the man mow our grass and fix up the yard? It looks like—"

"Oh, I don't care a—how it looks," she interposed.

Mr. Bulwinkle stopped as if he had been shot. He turned pale and looked at his wife in amazement. For a moment he thought his ears must have deceived him. Then he noticed a slight twinkle in her eyes, and, going up to her and putting an arm around her, he said:

"All right, dear, I'll quit."

And he did.—Cleveland Leader.

A Novel Criticism.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornwell had been going through the capitol building and had devoted a large share of time to Statuary hall.

"I tell you what it is," he remarked, with enthusiasm. "It's mighty fine to see all these people so lifelike an impression. I just think of Lincoln at the school of anatomy of Nathaniel Greene and Robert Fulton and all the rest of 'em."

"Yes," was the reply. "I'm going back there again before I leave the city."

"There's jes' as natural as anybody could wish. It all goes to show that this here talk about our needin' more works of art is foolishness."

"Ain't that what them is?"

"But a man told me they was works of art, and we ought to miss 'em on that account."

"He seen 'em was from the country. I know what I'm talkin' about, an' it makes me partic'lar proud to be able to say with emphasis that them is not works of art."

"But you ain't what folks calls a connoisseur."

"No, I'm jes' a plain farmer, but I'm sure them ain't works of art, jes' the same."

"Why?"

"Because there ain't none of 'em that the newspapers or anybody else could make exceptions to ex beln the least bit improper."—Washington Star.

His Remarkable Hen.

There is an original humorist in town, at least there is a man whose humor is original. He was in a group of story tellers the other night, and when it came his turn he said:

"I've got a remarkable hen out on my farm. She seems to know that I like a real fresh egg for breakfast. One night when I retired I left my hat lying on the floor, and she had dropped. In the morning the hen came to my room and laid an egg in the hat. After that I left the hat on the floor on purpose, and every morning the hen came and deposited an egg. A few mornings ago there was a newspaper in my hat, and the hen laid her egg on that. The egg, being warm and moist, received an imprint on the shell of a line from the paper which read, 'This is the force of habit.'"—Philadelphia Press.

NICKNAMED ROADS.

A RAILROAD MAN TELLS STORIES OF TWO OF THEM.

How the "Accommodation," in Pennsylvania, Got Its Name—The Gravelled Rails on the "Davy Crockett" Line—How Old Saved Many Lives.

A railroad man is responsible for the following story, says the "St. Louis Globe-Democrat":

"There is a road up in Pennsylvania that runs from York to Peach Bottom that the people living in the country through which it passes call the 'Accommodation.' It was, when originally built, a narrow gauge road, and as business had to be developed the train service was pushed on the order of the post as you please. There were two trains, and each made one round trip a day, the road being about 60 miles long. The officers gave orders to the trainmen to make friends with the people, so as to make them go out of their way to patronize the new road. The trainmen took advantage of this order at every opportunity.

"There were no telegraph or telephone stations on the road, and when the trains left the terminal stations the conductor was master of the situation until he got back again or arrived at the other terminus. They say that the superintendent of the road had the hardihood to ride over the road one day and that he hired a horse and buggy and rode back to York, as he was in a hurry.

"The train that puts up at Peach Bottom at night leaves York about 9 o'clock in the afternoon, and it is optional with the trainmen as to the time they arrive home. One of the trainmen on the road told some time ago that on one of the trips down they picked up a drunken farmer who had stretched himself out on the track for a quiet sleep. The conductor chanced to know him and held the train while the brakeman and baggage master carried him to his home nearly a mile away. In about an hour the two men returned with an invitation from the farmer's wife for the crew and passengers to come over to supper.

"There were only three passengers, and they quickly accepted the invitation. Of course the crew went, and after the repast an old negro with a cracked fiddle was brought in and a dance was inaugurated. The conductor then wanted to proceed, but the engineer had become so tired that he refused to leave the train, and he was carried to the house of the farmer's wife and put to bed.

"The train was due at Peach Bottom at 6 p. m., but that night it did not reach its destination until midnight. Only one more passenger was picked up on the lower end of the road, and he only remained a little, so no harm came from the incident. The engineer accounting for the delay to the superintendent with a good story about the engine giving out.

"That road is now owned by Baltimore people and is broad gauged, and the train service is almost first class. I might add that it was a common thing for the trainmen in the earlier days of the road to take large gifts along with them to the train at a good location and fill them with blackberries before proceeding, but that only occurred on an hour's delay and was little thought of. No wonder they called it 'Accommodation' road.

"When the Erie road was first built," the railroad man continued, "which now runs from Harrisburg to Canalbegan, N. Y., it was nicknamed the 'Davy Crockett,' and for many years thereafter the name clung. It was brought about in this way:

"One dark night, when the conductor was taking three passenger cars through to Sunbury, he noticed the headlight of a locomotive in his rear. He instantly informed the engineer of the fact, and both began speculating as to what it meant. The train was running at a high rate of speed, but the headlight in the rear was gaining steadily on them. As there were no lights in the rear of the headlight, they concluded it must be an empty engine. That road twists in and out among the mountains and skirts the banks of the Susquehanna river in such a way as to permit any one looking back to observe what is going on in the rear for a considerable distance.

"The conductor ordered the engineer to put on more steam, and the latter pulled the throttle wide open. Then followed a wild, weird chase through the night. Pursuer and pursued tore along at the highest speed. Everybody on the cars believed that the engineer of the pursuing engine was either drunk or crazy.

"At last a brilliant light struck the engineer. He recalled the fact that a locomotive can make little progress on grassy rails. The contents of two large cans of kerosene were poured on the track from the rear of the last passenger coach. The idea proved a great one. Soon the headlight of the pursuing engine grew dim in the distance. When it was safe to do so, the train stopped, and backing up the train was started. A very funny sight was revealed.

"One of the finest engines on the road, called the 'Davy Crockett'—they gave the locomotive names in those days instead of numbers—had broken away from the hostler up at Williamsport and started down the track on a voyage of destruction. The oil poured on the track had baffled all the destructive abilities that the locomotive possessed. There stood the 'Davy Crockett' puffing and snoring and pushing like a wild Texas steer, the driving wheels buzzing around on the grassed track like a flywheel in a machine shop, but hardly moving an inch.

"Not a sign of an engineer was found, and the fireman of the pursued train mounted the engine and shut her off. They towed her into Sunbury, and there had a dispatch ordering them on to a side track out of the way of the runaway, but the oil had saved them.

"A large excursion train was returning from Niagara Falls that night, and the escape from destruction was really brought about by the oil rails. The 'Davy Crockett' made many trips after that, but the road went under the nickname for a long time, owing to the peculiar way the lives of many people had been saved."

Now in Figures.

One of the queerest newspapers in the world is La Monaca. It is issued weekly, is admirably printed on expensive paper, and its news consists almost exclusively of figures arranged in long columns. These figures tell in what compartment of the roulette wheels at Monte Carlo and Spa the little balls have come to rest during the week's business.

A Remote Hope.

Felix—Do you mean that you can never be mine, Angeline?

Angeline—Well, I won't go so far as that, Mr. Turndown. I am going to marry you, but one never knows, you know.—Philadelphia American.

THE MESSENGER BOY.

How the Underpaid, Overworked Youngster Earns His Wages.

A messenger boy dived out of a North Side station and jogged industriously to the corner. Then he walked backward on the curb and then stopped to fondle a vicious bulldog chained inside a fence. He did so with a long stick.

The boy saw a "cop" coming. He jumped down and hid the stick in a place he had for it, and, seating himself in an express wagon, he pushed it with his feet to the end of the block. There he "flipped" a cable train on the intersecting street and rode a ways and then jumped off and walked back. The boy that owned the cart had not come for it, so the messenger stood it against the hydrant, seating off an indignant little girl by bulging out his eyes and cheeks at her. When she ran, he said, "Hee-o-o."

With a piece of chalk he marked a long line on the tails of a man's coat, he practiced jumping in an alley and then he discovered the hoop. This suggested glorious possibilities. The boy had kicked overshoes and old hats, but never a hoop. It was the hot thing. He would kick it so far, but when he didn't hit it straight it bothered. It was a quiet street, so people didn't interrupt. One woman did step on the hoop, and it flew up and struck her shoe, but she didn't say anything. Sometimes he ran at it to give it a good, hard kick—he hated to run, but this was different. He played on a harmonicon with one hand, fished out his book with the other and kicked the hoop.

When he reached the house, he put the hoop in the middle of the walk, where it could be promptly kicked when he came out, kept on playing the harmonicon and pushed the bell with his elbow. While he waited he peeked into the window, and then the door opened, and he disappeared. When he came out, he sent the hoop sailing into the middle of the street, but he was tired of it and hung it on the crossbar of a lamp-post. He had to jump to put it there.

He got some ice out of an ice wagon and thawed it at a dog, which yelped. He rode on the steps of a curio until chased off and then in a grocer's wagon and teased the dog. When he reached the corner, he thought of the bulldog and the bulldog's bone, but the dog was asleep, and no fun. The boy always made a point of joggling for the last block, so he lit a cigarette and turned the corner on a trot.—Chicago News.

VANITY FED BY CRIME.

Untutored Savages and Cultured Women Wear Ornaments Obtained by Murder.

There are, it is said, certain savages, just barely human beings, called Dyaks. They have become famous to the world as "head hunters." These Dyaks creep through miles of forest paths and kill as many as they can of another lot of people, and then cut off the heads of the slain and dry them and hang them up, arranged on lines more or less artistically fastened, about the place in which they live. This exhibition of dried and dead human heads seems to make these swart and murderous savages vain and glad. These people are, as we understand, or think we understand, but undeveloped, cruel, bloody minded human creatures. They prefer the dried human heads to delicate ferns showing wonderful outlines, or to brilliant leaves and fragrant flowers. They have their own ideas concerning decoration.

Upon a dozen or two of the islands in the southern Pacific, where the waves lap the sloping sands lazily and life should be calm and peaceful, there are, or were until lately, certain people who occasionally killed certain other people, for reasons sufficiently good, no doubt, to them, and who thus coming into possession of a group of dead countenances with fingers convulsed, as if the fingers of these dead, when dried, would make most artistic, not to say suggestive, necklaces. So they strung these dried fingers upon something strong and pliant and wore them with much pride.

When I see the bright feathers of birds, slain that but may be grieved for the thoughtless females of a higher grade of beings, I am reminded somehow of the Dyaks and of the wearers of the necklaces of fingers.—Woman's Home Companion.

Strong Stone.

It appears that from the town of Lee in western Massachusetts come some of the strongest marbles in the world, as they are found equal to bearing a weight of 18,400 pounds to the cubic inch, but the strongest American limestone comes from Kingston, N. Y., showing a capacity to stand 18,900 pounds pressure to the cubic inch. Tuckers marble will bear 12,400 pounds to the cubic inch, this being more than the well known red granite of the bay of Fundy region, the limit of this latter material being 11,812. The trap rocks of New Jersey and the dolomites of Staten Island are rated the strongest stones in the United States, their crushing resistance being 24,000 pounds to the cubic inch. Rhode Island granite crushes at 17,700 pounds to the cubic inch, that of Virginia will bear 31,500 pounds, and that from the quarries of Maryland 19,750 pounds. New England granites in general vary somewhat from these standards.—New York Sun.

Prune Salad.

What may be called a prune salad is possible with that much abused fruit if care is taken in its preparation. They do not need soaking, as Miss Parsy calls the only correct washing, each prune by itself, and stewing slowly without sugar. When they are thoroughly tender and puffed out to luscious plumpness, the rind of a lemon is added, and they are left on the range for another 15 minutes. Just before taking off add a glass of white wine, then put away in a covered jar to become chilled. They should be served cold at breakfast with about juice and a little unsweetened whipped cream.—New York Post.

Gentle Things.

"Yes," said the teacher, "the egg represents all that is gentlest in creation—the cooling doves, the careful song birds and the stately swan. Johnny, what other gentle things are hatched from eggs?"

"Snakes, aspicks, alligators, sparrow hawks and eagles," said Johnny.—London Fun.

A German coin collector says that coins with misprints are highly prized by numismatists. One Saxon thaler of the year 1858, which has "Thealr" on it, is now worth six times its intrinsic value, owing to that error.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

This Information Will Prove a Boon to Portsmouth Mothers

If a juvenile member of your family lacks control of the kidney secretions at night, don't scold or whip the child. The coating or lining of the bladder is inflamed and the kidney secretions are so full of acid that they irritate that organ and bed wetting is the result. The hundreds of testimonials from every state in the Union all declaring children have been cured of this weakness by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills prove that at least in other cases the remedy did what was promised, namely, stopped the so-called habit. Here is proof for Portsmouth mothers.

Mrs. A. G. Mace of 12 Madison street, says: "My little girl had weak kidneys. I believe she inherited the complaint. Her trouble was non-retention of the kidney secretions. Employed physicians and used many remedies advertised, but until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills at Philbrick's pharmacy nothing did her any good. They helped her so much and gave such relief to the child that I am very grateful for having my attention drawn to them."

For sale by all dealers; price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U. S.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1900.

Chief Justice Nichols, of Louisiana, will rattle down the ages as the one man who voted against Lincoln and Webster in the selection of names for the Hall of Fame.

Evidently the time is near at hand when no republican will be allowed to make a public speech in Chicago except on a permit issued by the democratic bosses.

Prosperity will be the mighty agency in shaping the result next month. As we have frequently remarked before, it is the republican trump card in this campaign.

If the empress dowager of China persists in her purpose to raise another army of 200,000 men the allied powers may yet consider it necessary to raise the empress dowager.

Nevertheless we believe that this attempt to make a national issue out of Webster Davis will fail. It is too much like trying to make a three ring circus tent out of a handkerchief.

Altgeld denies the report that he would be attorney general in the event of Bryan's election. Evidently nothing less than a place on the bench of the United States supreme court would satisfy him.

All things considered, people will prefer to sail with a captain whose chief object is a safe voyage rather than with one who is anxious to prove the strength of the vessel by ramming icebergs and steaming into sandbars. And that's why Capt. McKinley is just now getting the preference over Capt. Bryan.

One of the strongest claims of the present administration to popular support is the skill with which the treasury department has been managed in its relation to the money market and the currency of the country. It may be that this intimate relation between the treasury and the money market is not a good thing, but under our present financial system it exists, and it calls for the service of a trained financier with sound views at the head of the department. With a different kind of a man in that position infinite harm might result.

In estimating Yale's showing thus far in games her big scores are by no means conclusive, as she has met weaker teams than formerly. She no longer arranges contests with Lafayette, Lehigh, Brown, Williams, but has taken on Bates, Trinity, Bowdoin and Tufts. Her real strength will not be tested until she meets the Indians Nov. 10.

CAUCUS RESULTS.

The republicans of ward 3 held their caucus Wednesday evening and nominated the following ticket: Representatives, John Hallam, Charles Hayes; moderator, Charles C. Chabon; selectmen, Charles Hayes, George Hilton, Joseph J. Wain; registrar of voters, Charles G. Fernald; ward clerk, John Goodrich.

The democrats of ward 1 held their caucus that evening and nominated the following ticket to be supported at the coming election: Representatives, Eugene J. Sullivan, Elisha T. Cotton; moderator, Albert L. Rice; selectmen, James Kehoe, Thomas Loughlin, John Mooney, Jr.; registrars of voters, W. Gay Smart, Wallace G. Campbell; ward clerk, Shirley B. Davis.

The democrats of ward 4 have made these nominations: Representative, John H. Dowd; moderator, John Parker; selectmen, Stephen A. Probie, Charles E. Grover, Thomas Mahoney; registrar of voters, William P. Gardner; ward clerk, Charles E. Senter.

IN SUPREME COURT.

Grand Jury Returns Long List of Indictments.

The case of Frank L. Knight against the town of Derry to recover damages for injuries received through a defect in the highway in said town of Derry in October, 1898, occupied the attention of supreme court on Wednesday, the 17th inst. Messrs. Barham, Brown and Warren appeared for the plaintiff and G. K. Bartlett and Samuel W. Emery for the defendant. Many witnesses were present and the case was not completed at adjournment of court. The petit jury was dismissed until Thursday afternoon.

The grand jury returned the following list of indictments:

- Joseph Walker, Chester, breaking and entering.
- Frank Johnson, Derry, larceny.
- Arthur Gyrois, Derry, larceny.
- John M. Dore, Londonderry, keeping spirituous liquor for sale.
- George Fairbrother, Londonderry, keeping spirituous liquor for sale.

- Rufus Wood, Portsmouth, obstructing a car.
- Elisha T. Cotton, Portsmouth, selling spirituous liquor.
- Elisha T. Cotton, keeping spirituous liquor.
- William H. Randall and Thomas A. Jameson, selling short lobsters.

ARRESTED ON INDICTMENT.

Alleged Short Lobster Dealers Summoned into Court by Game Warden's Complaint.

William H. Randall and Thomas A. Jameson, the two men who were alleged to have had short lobsters for sale recently and who escaped from a fish and game warden, as told in this paper, were indicted by the grand jury at the present term of court.

Judge Wallace issued a writ for their arrest and Officer Charles Quinn took the two men into custody.

They were not locked up at the police station but turned over to the county solicitor, who placed them in charge of Sheriff Pender.

GENUINE SURPRISE PARTY.

Forty of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Klumpp of the Plains gave them a genuine surprise party at their home on Tuesday evening, when they awoke them in bed and proceeded to make the evening a lively one. The party carried with them a handsome parlor lamp for Mr. and Mrs. Klumpp and a handsome gold ring for the baby, Bernice.

An oyster supper was served during the evening, with additions of ice cream, cake, fruit, etc. After the supper there was dancing in the barn until after midnight. Turner's orchestra furnished music for the dancing. Several members of the party sang popular airs and the evening was a most pleasant one.

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.

THE SANITARY BULLETIN.

Notes of Interest From the State Board of Health Quarterly.

The following notes are from the quarterly sanitary bulletin of the state board of health and are of local interest at the present time:

Certificates of vaccination are so frequently required by school boards and teachers in connection with public schools, the State Board of Health has issued a vaccination certificate blank for the use of physicians. These may be had upon application to the board.

For the year 1899 there were reported to the Department of Vital Statistics of New Hampshire, 8,118 births, 3,741 marriages, and 7,045 deaths, the latter being a rate of 17.27 per each 1,000 of the population, as calculated upon the census returns.

Demands are constantly being made upon the State Board of Health for bacteriological examinations, and for chemical analyses of water, milk, and various suspected adulterated food supplies which have for a long time found an open market in New Hampshire. A state laboratory is an urgent necessity.

It is expected that Volume 16, Report of the State Board of Health of New Hampshire, will be ready for distribution in January, when the legislature convenes.

At writing, October 9, there were but three known cases of smallpox in New Hampshire, two in the small pox hospital in the town of Pittsfield, and one in Danbury, all of which will probably be discharged in the course of a week or ten days. Two cases were recently discovered in the town of Strafford, but they have recovered, the premises have been disinfected, and it is not expected that other cases will result therefrom.

For the past fifteen years there has been in New Hampshire an average of 728 deaths annually from consumption, and in this number are not included deaths from tubercular meningitis, hydrocephalus, tabes mesenterica, scrofula, and some other forms of tuberculosis.

Local boards of health will note that the yellow blank, form 2, for reporting outbreak of a communicable disease is no longer in use, the weekly report on form 3 being sufficient for the state board of health.

Needed: A laboratory to be under the management of the state board of health. A state sanatorium for the treatment of consumptives. State care for the indigent insane. Some provision for the care, treatment, and education of defective indigent children.

SHORT MACKEREL CATCH.

The total catch of salt mackerel is less than $5,000 pounds, landed at all New England ports. It does not look now as if the 100,000 barrels of salt mackerel would be reached unless something unforeseen occurs. The price of mackerel has steadily advanced from $7.75 per barrel up to $16.50.

Costly Redegress.

Not many years ago one of the most popular and expensive shops on upper Broadway was owned by a man of such skill in his particular line of work that his eccentricities of manner were tolerated for the sake of the excellence of his wares. He was ill natured and cross grained to a degree that made it difficult for customers to deal with him. Advancing age did not make his disposition any more agreeable, and finally his patronage dwindled away. Nowadays he occupies a cellar, and his business has come to be of an entirely different character from that he controlled only a few years ago.

A florist who was at one time the owner of a prosperous establishment acquired the same reputation among his clients, and he is now in charge of a basket of flowers near a department store. Both of these men are known to have ruined themselves commercially only through their manner of dealing with customers and are striking instances of the value of politeness in retail business.—New York Sun.

How a Butterfly Sleeps.

The butterfly invariably goes to sleep head downward. It folds and contracts its wings to the utmost. The effect is to reduce its size and shape to a narrow ridge, hardly distinguishable in shape and color from the seed heads on thousands of other stems around. The butterfly all so sleeps on the top of the stem. In the morning, when the sunbeams warm them, all these gray piled sleepers on the grass tops open their wings, and the colorless hennets are starred with a thousand living flowers of purest azure.—Spectator.

Midnight—the song is done; lay down thy lute,
Dark face, yet raptured from the music's close.
The lamp swings languidly—the soft light glows.
Around thee, and thy passionate lips are mute,
Too near to mine. Warm fragrances of fruit,
Odors of musk and jessamine and rose
Float faintly past us; some late reveler goes
Homeward with far-off sound of life and fate
The curtains drop their deep embroidery
Behind thee, and the jeweled goblets gleam;
Thy hungry, yearning eyes are fixed on mine—
As in the mazes of a wild love dream.
Slowly, by some magnetic law divine,
We tremble toward each other silently,
We tremble toward each other silently.
—M. C. Gillington.

A VERY STRONG HINT.

He Took It And Likewise the Fast Freight Train.

Sam Wood, whose name is written all over the state of Kansas, was one of the brightest lawyers and best newspaper men in the state. He made and wasted several fortunes before an effort to change a county seat ended in a gun fight which cost him his life. Not over-ambitious, he still had his good traits, and he has almost as many friends as enemies even now.
One time Sam Wood went out to a new county seat and opened a law office. Presently he found a flaw in the title by which about half the town site had been conveyed to the present holder, and he picked up the link and served notice he would give quietness deeds to every lot if the people in possession would pay him. If not, he gave notice he would begin suits in ejectment.
They were wild. They were awfully frightened. They held a meeting and appointed a committee. The committee looked into the matter and then went to Sam Wood with their reply.
"We have searched the records, Mr. Wood," said the chairman of the committee, "and we find you are right. If you insist on trying these cases, all these people must be thrown out of their homes. What sound is that, Mr. Committeeman?"
"It is the fast freight from the west," was the reply.
"Yes, it is the fast freight from the west," repeated the chairman. "It will stop at the tank for water. You have just time, Mr. Wood, to catch that train, and I wouldn't take a return ticket if I were you." And he began to unwind a rope he had looped up under his elbow.
"But through freights don't carry passengers," said Sam Wood, fully grasping the situation and looking swiftly over the utterly hopeless situation.
"This freight will carry a passenger," said the chairman of the committee calmly.
"Put the end of this rope over that awning pole, Mr. Committeeman. It will carry a passenger, and he can go as live or dead freight, just as he likes. We have just time!"
But Sam Wood was in the middle of the state and he was running, running, running. He caught the freight at the water tank, and he never returned.—Chicago Post.

THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

Our constitution has been amply shown by numerous modern commentators to be in its substance as much the embodiment of actual experience as the English constitution itself. We suffer, indeed, from an embarrassment of riches in sources of practice, American, English or Dutch, for its various formal provisions, and yet, while the substance and matter of the federal constitution may be old, there is enough in it that was new in form at the time of its construction to attract attention from more familiar features. For example, popular thought could not take in without difficulty the idea of a political society made up of states that were independent and at the same time under central control, nor could it understand a central control acting under the old form of a confederacy.
Furthermore, the circumstances attending the forming and adoption of the constitution were such as to make it appear a new construction. The meeting of a body of men representing a nation, with the deliberate intention of framing a fundamental law covering the entire field of government, was a new event in political experience. Although much might be said in the convention about English practice and the English constitution, the fact of a freedom to adopt or reject, made over the following of custom in some sort an act of voluntary creation. This aspect of the convention's work, at any rate, was the aspect that impressed the imagination of the time most forcibly and has continued to impress the imagination of succeeding generations until within very recent years.—Kate Holladay Claghorn in Atlantic.

The Greatest Park in the World.

Writing of "The Greatest Nation on Earth" in "The Ladies' Home Journal," William George Jordan says: "Uncle Sam set apart a royal pleasure ground in northwestern Wyoming and called it Yellowstone National Park. To give an idea of what its size, 3,312 square miles, really means, let us clear the floor of the park and tenderly place some of the great cities of the world there close together as children do their blocks. First put in London, then Greater New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Paris, Boston, Berlin, St. Louis, Hongkong, San Francisco and Washington. The floor of the park would then be but half covered. Then lift up Rhode Island carefully, so as not to spill any of its people, set it down, and press in the West Indies, and even then there are 200 square miles left. No equal area in the world has such a diversity of natural phenomena and such magnificent scenery. It is a marvelous land of streams and waterfalls, lakes and hot springs, mountains, canyons, gorges and forests of primeval age."

Doesn't Trust Man.

A naturalist says that in captivity elephants always stand up when they sleep, but when in the jungle, their own land and home, they lie down. The reason given for the difference between the elephant in captivity and freedom is that the elephant never acquires complete confidence in his keepers and always longs for liberty.

Overheard in the Barnyard.

Big calf (vainly)—Get out of my way or I'll stop on you. You're nobody.
Barnyard fowl (haughtily)—If you could hear folks grumble when they find you in chicken salad, you'd change your tune.—New York Tribune.

The law is a sort of house police science that smiles in yef face while it picks yer pockets, and the glorious uncertainty of it is of main use to the professors than the justice of it.—Macklin.

Poverty is the only load which is the heavier the more loved ones there are to assist in supporting it.—Richter.

GOLD DUST

THE BEST Washing Powder

"It does the work my muscle used to do."

With Gold Dust you can do the cleaning about the house in half the time, at half the cost and with half the effort as with soap or any other cleanser. For greatest economy use the large package.

"Housework is hard work without Gold Dust."

THE BOER WAR.

Lord Roberts Reports Increased Activity.

London, Oct. 17.—Lord Roberts reports from Pretoria under date of Oct. 13 as follows:
"I have started from Mafeking to clear a part of the country not yet visited by our troops."
"I have been commencing the mounted troops, successfully engaged the enemy on Oct. 13, but our losses were severe. Three officers and eight men being killed and three officers and 25 men wounded."
"French occupied Gouda yesterday, capturing a number of arms and horses."
"Lord Roberts also reports a number of minor affairs, showing that the Boers are still active over a wide area."
The British retreated from Gouda, near Kimberley, Oct. 14, and occupied and captured 50 Boers.
Sir Alfred Miller has arrived at Pretoria. He was met by Lord Roberts at the railway station and was assigned a house near headquarters.
The Times in an editorial dealing with the South African situation, announces that Sir Alfred Miller will be appointed governor of the contemplated republic. It says:
"He will remain high commissioner, but will cease to be governor of Cape Colony. One of the first tasks to be settled will be how the shareholders of the Netherlands railway are to be dealt with, that company having forfeited its property by engaging in acts of war against Great Britain."

Mr. Kruger's Departure.

Brussels, Oct. 17.—The Transvaal agency has received a dispatch from Laurence Marquis confirming the report of the imminent departure of Mr. Kruger on board the Dutch warship Goldenland. The dispatch says he will probably visit the continental capitals.

Jewelry Worth $20,000 Stolen.

Barnardville, N. J., Oct. 17.—Charles Pfister, who lives near here, has reported to the police that David Richards, his butler, has disappeared, as well as diamond-studded jewelry worth $20,000. Mrs. Pfister was away from home and secured her jewelry in the room of the maid, and it was from this room the last heard of the butler was when he hired a horse and buggy Monday night and said he was going to Morristown. The police of the large cities have been notified.

Miss Gast Breaking Records.

New York, Oct. 17.—Miss Margaret Gast, the record breaking wheelwoman who lowered the national 2,000 mile record over the Valley Stream course at 7:05 o'clock Monday evening, is still pedaling away in quest of more long distance honors. At 4:45 yesterday afternoon Miss Gast finished 2,175 miles. She then looked to be in fair condition, but was pretty tired. She expects to ride 3,000 miles and break all records.

Tried to Kill His Wife.

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 17.—John Nagle, a contractor of this place, tried to kill his wife. The bullet caused a glancing wound on the forehead. Nagle would have fired more than one shot but for Milford Hampton, a negro, who disarmed him. Domestic difficulties caused the shooting. The woman will recover.

Eight Poisoned by Tondatoles.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 17.—John Balog is dead and seven other men who resided at a boarding house kept by Michael Balog at 250 Church street are critically ill as the result of eating tondatoles which they mistook for mushrooms.

Pawtucket Spinners Win Strike.

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 17.—The strike of male spinners at the American yarn company's mills here, which was begun Oct. 8, has been settled, the spinners being granted their demands for an increase of about 12 per cent in wages.

Brooklyn Wins Second Game.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—Pittsburg put up a miserable exhibition of ball playing in the second day's game for the world's championship and presented the game to Brooklyn on errors. The score stood 2 to 4.

WESTERN MINERS.

They Are Not as a Rule Queer in Dialect or Manners.

To compare Bret Harlow and Buffalo Bill with each other may at first seem entirely out of order, as giving to the contrast in most particulars, and not they are alike in this, that both, without intending to do so, have injured the far west by greatly exaggerating the peculiarities of life in this part of the union, if they have not actually presented that which never did, in fact, exist.

Buffalo Bill has done it with his wild west shows, and in consequence thousands of men and women in Europe and the eastern part of the United States think that the typical far westerner is a cowboy and that cowboy by stage is fraught with danger at every step. Bret Harlow has done something of the same sort by representing the principal characters of far western towns as rough and illiterate, though it may be honest, men who use a form of speech which one would have to go far to hear in any part of this world.

One is reminded of the by a critic who recently appeared in the Chicago Tribune upon Judge Francis's collection of short stories called "Pine Valley." The critic accuses the author of misrepresenting life in Colorado mining camps by causing characters to employ what he calls parlor English. The author of that criticism took for granted that the miners are ignorant of good English, and he probably also thinks that they use a dialect peculiar to mining camps, or it may be far western towns in general.

While every now and then one encounters prospectors or miners who, having lived isolated lives for many years, have acquired peculiarities of speech, there are, as a matter of fact, exceptions. As a rule miners belong to the class composed in the west of intelligent mechanics, farmers and to residents of towns and villages. They have the command of English which is possessed by the average person educated in a public school, and a great majority of them were born east of the Missouri river, if not east of the Mississippi.

But in addition there are thousands of men living in mining camps and wearing habitually miners' clothes who are well educated and speak as pure and grammatical English as one can hear in the offices of lawyers, doctors and civil engineers in any part of the Union. Any author would not be criticised for putting parlor English in the mouths of men of this class in the east, and the criticism is no less unjust if the scene of the story is laid in the far west. As for a true dialect, the far west is not old enough for the development of anything of that kind. One may hear it in the mountains of Tennessee and in some of the rural communities to the east. But for anything like this the far west is as yet too young and its population is a mixture of people drawn from too many different parts of not the United States, but the whole English speaking world.—Denver Republican.

A Question of Taste.

"Parkinson says his wife buys his ties, and they are never worn out."
"That explains it."
"Explains what?"
"Why he never wears them out. His wife buys them."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Dr. W. B. Lewis, Lawrenceville, Va., writes: "I am using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure in my practice among severe cases of indigestion and find it an admirable remedy." Many hundreds of physicians depend upon the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure in stomach troubles. It digests what you eat, and allows you to eat all the good food you need, providing you do not overeat your stomach. Gives instant relief and a permanent cure. Philbrick's pharmacy.

LONDON TAGS HAVE VALUE.

Old Clothes Men Willing to Pay For the Mark of the English Tailor.

The old clothes man refused absolutely to give more than 75 cents for the outworn coat.
"But," remonstrated the customer, "you offered me $1 for the sack coat, and the outworn is worth about four times as much as the sack."
"The sack has the tag of the London maker on it," explained the dealer. "That makes the difference."
"Does it?" retorted the customer.
"I'll always give half a dollar more for a coat with a London tag on it than for one without," said the dealer. "I can always sell it quicker and better."
"You'll be doing pretty well if the tag helps you to sell that coat at any price," remarked the customer, surveying the ancient and dilapidated garment.

"That coat or some other coat," returned the dealer. "You see, the tag's the thing. There are a lot of Englishmen in New York who can't afford to get their clothes in London, but would rather starve than wear anything but London clothes, and there are some Americans here who have lived in London so long that nothing American suits them, and who would go back there tomorrow if they had money enough. These men come into my place and see a coat with one of these tags on it, and I tell them it's a misfit that's come to me, and they buy it and go away happy. So the tag is really worth more than the coat."

"You can buy genuine Stradivarius labels for violins in New York for $1 a dozen," said the customer. "Why don't you go to that man for your genuine London clothes tags? You would find it cheaper."
"That's so," replied the dealer. "I think I have heard it said that some dealers do go to the Stradivarius man for their tags, but that's no reason why we shouldn't be glad to get a tag like this when we have a chance. Somehow it gives a better air of reality. It's worth more anyhow."
"I wonder," proceeded the customer, "whether the tag was the thing I paid for when I bought that coat. The coat never suited me. I kept ripping and tearing and all the furnishings about it were of poor quality. The only reason why anybody should respect it at all was that it was English."
"That's the way with English clothes," answered the dealer. "They may not be anything in the way of clothes, but they have the tags."
"Make it $1 for the sack coat," said the customer. "Be patriotic!"

Great Shooting.

A few exemplary old citizens who did their duty hunting before the noble game was as scarce as it now is were recollecting feats of marksmanship when they were the nimrods of the day.
"I very seldom pulled a trigger that I didn't get venison," modestly declared one veteran whose hair and voice have grown thin. "In one instance I brought down a fine buck that I never expected to get. I saw him coming on the dead run—that is, I saw his antlers, for he was galloping along 100 yards away and just enough below me to cover everything but his horns. I tried to get his head or body in sight, but he was going too fast. Just because I was mad I let fly at the trunk of one horn. I followed along slowly, muttering at my hard luck, when I found my buck dead as a herring."
"Shot him dead through the horn, hey?" sneered the man who will soon be 80.
"Better wait till you hear it all. That bullet struck the lower inside of one of the prongs, glanced and went through the head of the deer. It was natural enough, and I only tell it to show what strange things may happen."

"Couldn't have been much stranger," said the old man who has been bald so long that he is proud of a little tuft of hair above each ear. "I once had a peculiar experience myself while out killing deer just for the sport of the thing. I shot dear in the hind foot, the same bullet going through his brain."

"Caromed on the hoof, I presume," chuckled an old cynic, who looked as though he didn't believe a word that had been told.

An Imbecile Peer.

The Lord Denman this generation knew would be harshly described if he were said to be insane, for he was not violent and never offended any more than he hurt anybody, but he was certainly of weak or at least eccentric intellect. He attended every sitting of the house of lords quite calmly, and he was not sitting passed without his rising to speak. Then a very curious thing would happen. You, as a visitor, would be surprised, perhaps even a little shocked, to observe that every peer in the house began at once to talk to his neighbor and to talk in as loud a voice as he could until the usually stammer and spectrally silent assembly became positively as noisy as the grasshoppers in a big field.

When you looked at the venerable figure with the hooked nose and heard the ridiculous voice, you were positively shocked that an assembly of noblemen should show itself so wanting in the commonest courtesies of life, but really there was no choice in the matter. Lord Denman always talked inaudibly or imbecilely, and there was no method by which he could be kept down except by the rough and ready method I have described. He made motions. Nobody took notice of them. The lord chancellor did not even go through the formality of putting them to the vote and having them rejected. It was as if nobody spoke, as if this figure were a ghost from the grave.—Harper's Magazine.

Diet of the Artist and Literary Man.

The learned German physiologist Molschott said in reference to the diet of the artist and litterateur: "Well baked bread and lean meat, combined with young vegetables and such roots as are easy to digest and contain a considerable proportion of sugar, form a wholesome diet for thinkers and poets. A large quantity of leguminous seeds, heavy bread, rich pastry and greasy meats create those irritable, morose and almost always slender statesmen who have permitted melancholy thoughts and gloomy imaginations to eclipse all happier views of life in them, so that they have come to consider rods and fetters as the most important promoters and protectors of civilization. A large body and fleshy face may be suitable for monks and gluttons longing for repose, but are not adapted for men of intellect. Abundance of fat in the blood of the brain paralyzes thought and hangs lead upon the wings of the imagination."—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Maternal Solicitude.

Never marry a homely man if you would lead a happy married life, my daughter. A handsome man takes it for granted that all the women admire him, and he takes no particular notice of them, but a homely man thinks that every woman who looks at him is in love with him.—Boston Transcript.

Insincerity.

TUAN PLOTTING AGAIN.

Evidence of His Continued Power Makes Shanghai Uncasy.

PRINCE'S ADVISE TO MANDARINS

They Are Told to Have Patience, Keep Armaments Going and Prepare For New Massacre—Friendly Viceroy Removed.

London, Oct. 17.—Hongkong dispatches tell of the continued spread of the southern rebellion. The Hongkong correspondent of The Daily Express sends a report that the British torpedo boat destroyer Hardy shelled 2,000 rebels who were advancing on San-chui, killing 40 and wounding hundreds.
There is no confirmation of the reported capture of Pao-tang-fu, of which, according to the Shanghai Echo, M. Doehne, the French consul there, has received news. The report is generally discredited in London.

The evidence of Prince Tuan's continuance in power causes anxiety. According to the Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post, it has produced a serious depression in trade there. Two Chinese banks have failed. Others are expected to close, and it is reported that the Russo-Chinese bank is in difficulties. Shanghai advises say the local mandarin has received a dispatch from Prince Tuan stating that the court is now in safe keeping and exhorting them to have patience until winter kills off some of the allies, to keep the armaments in constant work and "everything in readiness for a massacre of all foreigners when the proper time arrives." It is also reported that the emperor dowager has issued a decree removing Liu Kun Yi, viceroy of Szechuan, and ordering General Yang Lu to join her at Sing-chu-fu.

Reactionary Mandarins Appointed. The Shanghai correspondent of The Times, writing yesterday, says: "It is reported on good authority that Liu Kun Yi telegraphed today to Sir Robert Hart, begging him to use his best endeavors to negotiate peace. This indicates that the Nankin viceroy fears an extension of the troubles if the present situation is allowed to continue. "Further appointments of reactionary Mandarins to high positions in the Yangtze region shows an intention to break the power of the friendly viceroys."

A dispatch by the Havas agency to Paris dated Tuesday, says: "The British ambassador, being informed of the situation of the basis of negotiations, proposed by M. Delcasse, French minister of foreign affairs, called a meeting of the diplomatic corps in Peking. The French propositions were unanimously approved, and appreciation was expressed of France's initiative. United States Minister Conger alone raised objection, not against the propositions, but against the method of procedure. He held that the French propositions would have to be imposed upon the Chinese during the negotiations. At a cabinet council held in Paris yesterday, M. Delcasse announced that all the powers had accepted the French note as the basis for negotiations. St. Petersburg advises say the Russian government permits it to become known that its attitude in China will be increasing independence of the concert of the powers. Russia, it is explained, is disposed to attach less value to joint action since her interests have been fully secured by the successful campaign in Manchuria. Moreover, Russia is not willing to "allow the irreconcilable policy of some of the powers."

The expectation is that the Chinese government is about to utilize all its resources of duplicity to keep the powers occupied with vain negotiations and proposals and the dispatching of notes to gain time until the winter, counting on the rigor of the climate to prevent military operations and allow China to gather her resources for a spring campaign.

Fatal Fire in Detroit.

Detroit, Oct. 17.—As a result of a fire in the building at 15 Jefferson avenue, occupied by the Wiltchell Bros. company, limited, manufacturers of elk skin shoes, two men are dead and eight persons are more or less seriously hurt. The fire started in the basement, which was used as a storeroom for boxes and lumber. At first it was thought barrels of rubber cement had exploded. These were stored in an arway under the alley, but after the fire was extinguished the barrels were found to be intact. The origin remains a mystery.

Police Marshal Badly Hurt.

New York, Oct. 17.—Police Marshal William D. Flood of Bradley Beach, N. J., was assaulted by Halstead Poland and badly hurt. In the course of the assault James Poland, son of Burdett Poland, and James Riddle, Jr., were also cut and bruised. It is said Flood attempted to quiet a drunken man. His friends interfered, and outsiders came to the rescue of Flood, whose injuries will prove fatal.

Paying the Census Takers.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The sum of $3,419,373 has been paid to census enumerators who made the enumeration for the twelfth census. These men numbered nearly 33,000, and all but about two hundred of them have been paid off. Those who have been settled with averaged an earning of $14.94 each, which is about

When October is in the mood, nothing can be more beautiful.

Is it a burn? Use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. At your druggists.

The supreme court cases are being listened to by a large number.

The rally at Music hall tonight should attract a large audience.

It looks as if the session of the supreme court would be a long one.

The original cast will be seen with Daniel Sully in The Parish Priest.

Everybody will be very glad when coal gets down to its normal price.

The firemen have been enjoying an easy time of it for a long period now.

Workmen are making repairs to the wharf at the steamer Mystic's landing.

That is a pretty long list of indictments which the grand jury has reported.

Tickets for What Happened To Jones went on sale at Music hall box office this morning.

Reports of fatal football accidents are commencing to come in from all sections of the land.

Hotels and boarding houses are busy this week accommodating the many members of the legal fraternity and the jurors.

Mrs. Winklow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, always all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

JAYCOCKS STILL ALIVE.
It seems that the report of the death, in China, of Sergeant Jaycocks, U. S. M. C., was unfounded. According to a letter recently received in this city, he simply suffered from heat prostration while on the road from Tien Tsin to Peking, and was in the hospital for a time, but has now recovered and rejoined his command.

AUTUMN FOLIAGE POOR.
People who are interested in outdoor life are predicting that the autumn foliage will not be particularly beautiful this year. It is argued that the warm weather has lasted so long that the leaves are about ready to come off, that they are already dropping fast, and that the first high wind will remove them before they turn any very brilliant colors.

REPUBLICANS, ATTENTION.
The republicans of Portsmouth are requested to assemble at the probate court room in the county building on State street, at 7:15 o'clock this Thursday evening, to march to the Rockingham and there meet the speakers of tonight's rally and escort them to the flag raising at the corner of Congress and Vaughan streets and thence to Music hall.

LOBSTER HATCHING INCREASING.
The marine laboratory at Woods Hole is making a record of increasingly good work in the artificial propagation of lobsters. At first the production of fry at the hatchery at Woods Hole did not exceed 54 per cent. By the use of improved apparatus, the per cent. of production has steadily been raised. In 1897 it was 90 per cent. and there is now substantial hope, what with the results gained in Maine, for a prosperous future for the lobster interest in New England.

$130,812 FOR PORTSMOUTH.
In his annual report, just published, Engineer in Chief Melville urges an appropriation of $1,000,000 for a 5,000-ton repair ship on the plan of the Vulcan, but improved in detail. The estimates for the various navy yards and stations are as follows:

New York, $656,835; Norfolk, $443,986; Boston, $276,423; Mare Island, $352,625; League Island, $161,457; Portsmouth, $130,812; Port Royal, $9,884; Washington, D. C., $34,847; Pensacola, $5,549; Key West, $22,663; Newport, $9,379; Bremerton, $9,502.

TWO FISHERMEN MISSING

Jefferson Bridges and Herbert Donnell of York Probably Drowned.

Were Blown Off from York Last Tuesday Afternoon.

Not Even a Trace of Their Boat Can Be Found.

Herbert Donnell and Jefferson Bridges, two fishermen of York, went off York Beach on Tuesday afternoon for a night's fishing between Boon Island and the Isles of Shoals. Since that time no one has reported to have seen them and they are believed to have been blown out to sea, or their boat swamped and the two men drowned.

That afternoon a squall swept out over the sea and was followed by a gale of wind all night. Old fishermen at York believe that it was impossible for them to have kept their craft from being swamped by the big seas that were running that night.

Their craft was an open whaleboat and they had only food enough to last them that night. A search was made along the coast on Wednesday afternoon and again today but no trace of the men can be found. It is possible that they have been picked up by some coasting vessel, which found them in danger, but it is thought very improbable.

A DAY OF WRECKS.
The High Wind Plays Havoc With Shipping Along the Coast.

The schooner Chester R. Lawrence, bound from Boston to Rockport, light, had an experience Tuesday evening a few miles off Elizabethport, Me. The schooner had passed outside the Shoals, when she encountered the high wind which prevailed, and was blown toward the shore. During the squall the craft lost several of her sails, and was unable to continue farther. Then the wind died down considerable, so that the schooner turned about and headed for Portsmouth harbor.

Captain Mayo and the life-saving crew at Jerry's Point, upon sighting the disabled vessel went to her assistance, and aided the vessel in getting into Kittery Point, where she is now anchored. The schooner will remain in the lower harbor until her new sails arrive from Rockport. The damage done to the sails will amount to about $250.

News has been received by Superintendent Harding of the life-saving service of the wreck at Lubec, Me., of the Mary Lee Newton, a schooner of 112 tons, built in Berry, Me., in 1868, and owned in Calais, Me. The crew were rescued by the life-savers of Quoddy Head station, Captain Myers, keeper, by breeches buoy that morning at 6 o'clock. The schooner will doubtless be a complete wreck.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED
With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

HIS DEATH WILL BE WIDELY DEPLORED.
John B. Wright, editor of the Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette, a newspaper man well known throughout the country, died at his home in Haverhill on Wednesday. Mr. Wright's personality was of the same fearless, aggressive sort as that of the late Editor Foster of Dover. His thoughts were never sluggish, his pen was never idle. His editorial utterances were widely quoted by the press of New England and his absence from the ranks of the profession will be deeply felt. Mr. Wright was always a busy man, from the time when he began his newspaper career as a reporter, and by constant industry and the exercise of excellent judgment, he had built up the Gazette until it now ranks high in every respect. He deserved success and it came to him.

A FIENDISH ATTACK.

An attack was lately made on O. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters, which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at the Globe Grocery Co.
